

MASTER
LIVEBOARDS

Shark Diving Equipment Guide

Bahamas Master

Examples of acceptable BCDs/Wings:

Types of BCDs that are also acceptable, although you may be required to place tape over the brightly coloured sections:

Below are examples of buoyancy devices not suitable for shark diving activities. Guests would be required to purchase alternative equipment or use a rental BCD:

Examples of acceptable fins:

Examples of acceptable fins where some taping or temporary rubber spray may be required to cover coloured sections:

The following type/ coloured fins are not suitable for shark diving activities. Guests would be required to purchase alternative equipment or use rental fins:

Examples of acceptable wetsuits:

Acceptable wetsuits:

Examples of wetsuit colours/ designs that are NOT suitable for shark diving:

NOT suitable for shark diving:

Examples of acceptable hoods

The following are examples of hoods that are NOT suitable for shark diving:

NOT suitable for shark diving

Examples of acceptable gloves

Below are examples of gloves that are NOT acceptable

Examples of acceptable masks:

Examples of masks we would prefer people not to bring:

Examples of masks NOT suitable for shark diving:

PLEASE NOTE:

This document is NOT a complete list of acceptable equipment, nor is it a requirement to have specific items that are shown as examples. However, it is a requirement for ALL equipment to be dark-coloured and with minimal or no brightly coloured elements.

The images are intended as a guide to show equipment types and colours that are suitable for shark diving and items/ colours/ patterns that are not suitable. If you are unsure about any of your equipment, please contact a member of our team. In all cases, crew decisions are final.

Photography

We understand that many camera housings feature sections/ panels that are colourful, bright, and/ or shiny. As these are hand-held rather than attached to your body, and can readily be let go of, (no lanyards/ body attachments are allowed) they are acceptable. We will only deny the use of a camera housing if it is overly 'bright'.

Examples of camera housings that would not be permitted for use during shark dives are:

