About Galapagos

The Galapagos archipelago is world renowned for its outstanding variety of marine life and striking landscapes. Located in the Pacific Ocean, 1000km off the coast of Ecuador, this group of volcanic islands are a living laboratory for evolution, and home to a vast number of endemic species. The isolated nature of this destination led to the development of unusual animal life such as the land iguana, the giant tortoise and many types of finch, which inspired Charles Darwin's theory of evolution by natural selection.
